

THE SEVEN-DAY GENEROSITY CHALLENGE

DISCUSSION GUIDE FOR SMALL GROUPS

(Following the Seven Day Generosity Challenge)

Remember, generosity is not a theory and the goal of our Seven-Day Generosity Challenge is to encourage and inspire you to engage in a life of joyful, Christ-centered generosity.

This past week you have been challenged to experience freedom, trust, courage, action, readiness, change, and risk. The final goal is to also experience personal transformation. Our prayer that this can happen as you share your experience with others whom you trust.

1. We have just spent seven days thinking about fresh ideas for a lifestyle of generosity. As you reflect on these days, which of the seven “teachings” was most impactful for you? In what way?
2. What was a new and helpful insight you gained from this whole experience?
3. Share with the group one of the commitments that you accepted as a personal challenge. What are you doing about it so far?
4. On day two we were challenged to recall times when God met our needs in surprising and amazing ways. If you can, share one or more of these with the group.
5. On day seven one of the challenges was to make a list of things for which we are particularly grateful. Share some of the items from your list as a testimony of God’s goodness and provision in your life.
6. If you could recommend this seven day challenge to a friend, what would you tell them about it?
7. In two’s, take a few more minutes to share something that was important for you in this seven day experience, and then end by praying for each other.
